Chicago to Have the Democratic National Convention.

Which Will Meet on Tuesday, June 24—How the Battle Was Fought.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 22, 3:40 p. m.—Mr. Vest has just been speaking. A gentleman just from the committee-room says Vest's speech was the most effective that has been made. Saratoga is to follow. The battling will begin in about twenty minutes.

THE BATTLE.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 22.—4:10 p. m.—First ballot: Chicago 15, St. Louis 14, Cincinnati 11, Louisville 3, Saratoga 5 and Baltimore 9. Requires 20 to elect.

SECOND BALLOT.

Chicago 16, St. Louis 17, Cincinnati none, Saratoga 2, Baltimore none.

THIRD BALLOT.

Chicago 21, St. Louis 17, Cincinnati none, Saratoga 2, Baltimore none.

THE BATTLE.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 22.—5:20 a. m.—The indications are that Chicago is the place in which the next Democratic Convention will be held. Though a majority of the members of the National Committee seem to favor St. Louis, they are aware that the last date at which the convention is likely to meet will make it practically impossible on account of the weather to select that city. The convention will meet in June, and a short campaign is apparently overwhelming. By some of the members of the committee, August 5 is mentioned as the possible date at which the convention should be held. Chicago expects to get 20 votes on the first ballot, and enough on the second to secure a decision in her favor. Chairman Saratoga is advancing the claims of Saratoga, but will vote for Chicago if, after the second ballot, it has become apparent that Saratoga can not carry off the prize. Mr. Vest is said to favor Saratoga, and has indicated that it is necessary to hold the convention in New York State. It is in accordance with his wishes that Mr. Vest advocates his claims. It is also understood that a letter is to be addressed by Mr. Vest to Mr. Vest, which will be read at the meeting. The nature of his contents is not known, though it is supposed to contain a good deal of advice and a reference to the "War of 1876."

They Know All About It.

St. Louis, Feb. 22.—The Post-Dispatch of today contains the following editorial: "This is the first day in two weeks that the morning papers have not authoritatively announced that the President would name a man for the St. Louis Post-Office during the day. The President is about the only man in Washington who does not know when he will fill the office, and, stranger still, he is the only man who does not know whose name will be sent to the Senate."

Assaulted the Jailor.

YANALIA, Ill., Feb. 23.—Sanford Noe, of Bond county, who is to be tried for wife-murder at the coming term of the circuit court here next week, assaulted the jailor because the latter refused to procure him some medicine which was wholly unnecessary. Noe, it is thought, is feigning insanity with a view to escaping punishment, and it is understood that counsel will enter such a plea. Nearly a year ago he was brought here on a charge of wife-murder in Bond county, charged with having murdered his wife in cold blood in the most brutal manner. About 150 witnesses, mostly from Bond county, are expected to testify in the case.

A GORGEOUS SPECTACLE.

The Annual Masquerade Ball at Madison Square Garden.

New York, Feb. 23.—The annual Aron masquerade ball was held Wednesday night at the Madison Square Garden. It was attended by such a number of gay maskers that dancing with any degree of comfort was rendered most impossible. It was a grand spectacle, and the most successful of the many enjoyable balls given by the Aron Society. The garden has never before been so handsomely decorated, and to say that it fairly resembled an immense flower garden is sufficient to demonstrate to all that know the garden what a great transformation must have taken place. Each of the immense pillars in the building was surrounded by a mass of strobilary and greenery until they resembled immense Christmas trees, while from pillars and trees were stretched ways of stars and evergreens. Around the sides of the building were strobilary garlands bearing in brilliant colors scenes during the course of the ball. Like lanterns, the scene hung from the roof at the edge of the dancing floor, bearing illustrations of coming to the ball and going home. The entrance to the hall at the Madison Square Garden was an immense affair, with a just inside the doors was a raised platform, encircled on all sides by masses of strobilary and greenery. A large number of people were seen entering the door, and the scene was a most successful one.

FROM METROPOLIS TO CHICAGO.

A Recital of the Rains Wrought by the Flood.

Metropolis, Ill., Feb. 23.—In coming from Evansville, Ind., down the Ohio river, the lights that grace the passengers' eyes are almost beyond belief. After pulling out from Evansville, the first place that attracts attention is the little village of Fairplay, Ky. Here the floods have so completely cleared the place, containing about ten houses, of the evidences of the habitation of man as if it had never been inhabited. The entire village, including a thriving trading place, being entirely swept away. The point where the steamer stands is at Fairplay, Ind., containing about 150 houses, and the entire village has been lifted from their resting places and gone down the swelling stream.

Blissard's Discourtesy to the Congress of the United States.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 23.—The Daily news of yesterday prints the following: A SENATORIAL MATTER.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 23.—Gov. Curran, chairman of the Committee on Foreign Affairs, has just received a letter from the German ambassador in Washington, Mr. von Bernstorff, in which the ambassador expresses his regret that the German government is unable to accept the resolution of the Senate regarding the Lasker resolution. Last Saturday he was disposed to make light of the whole matter, but since the State Department has this morning reported to him the general character of Blissard's reply, and his insulting disregard of Minister Sargent, he has made up his mind that he will not accept the resolution.

who regard Sargent's appointment as little better than an insult. I don't think, however, that the German government intended to be offensive to him, but he had a right to interpret them as such, for he knows Sargent, and he would expect to be repulsed by any such expression coming from such a person as an affront. He has doubtless been informed by his representative at Washington that the form of adopting such resolutions is to permit them to be read and then declare them adopted, unless there be dissenting votes. Congress pays no attention to things of that kind, and I thought that the German ambassador, who Lasker was much less the principles he represented. The general public here pay no attention to the issues involved, and consequently they will not feel at all hurt by the action of Blissard. I can tell you the history of these resolutions. On the 10th of January, when Lasker was in the city, he thought that it could get through a series of resolutions on Lasker he would make himself very solid among the Germans at home. He did so. It is all a result of the recall of Sargent from his post with no reason to regret it."

The Washington birthday anniversary military ball and reception, given at the armory of the Deatur Guards last night, was one of the most enjoyable society events of the present season, and as was predicted, it was largely attended by the youth and beauty of this and other cities. The armory was specially decorated for the occasion by a profusion of flags—the large one presented the company by Maj. J. H. Smith being the most conspicuous. The hall was kept well ventilated, and was brilliantly lit by a flood of electric light supplied by one lamp, hung from the center of the ceiling. There were about 75 couples present, among them Mr. and Mrs. John S. House, of Springfield; Mrs. George Morgan, of St. Louis; Miss Ethel Snyder, of Atlanta, Ga.; Misses Annie Hogan and Kathie Schultz and James Doyle, of Taylorville; Miss Lizzie Hopping and Miss Nesbitt, of Springfield; Miss Milroy, of Leominster, Mo.; Miss Hicks, Mrs. B. W. Johns, and others. The ladies wore elegant costumes, and altogether it was a merry happy party of graceful dancers. The musical program included 20 dances, for which the Opera Orchestra furnished good music, Prof. Leonard serving as prompter. At intermission refreshments were had at Wood Bros' and Orotors' restaurants. The party was given under the personal direction of the following members of the company: Arrangements—George F. Bell, chairman; Ed. Dillehunt, Logan Phillips, John Myers. Invitation—F. W. Walters, chairman; Ben. Shookley, Seymour Campbell and Frank B. Duffee. Reception—Capt. W. W. Foster, chairman; Lint E. W. Alexander, Adolph Gehrman, Fred Durfee, Dick Roberts, Lute and Fred Shellenbarger, Will Haworth, Tom McElroy, Jennie Lytle, Harry Gussaway, Harry Bumstead and Lou Griswold, were given a delightfully pleasant reception and party at the elegant new home of Mrs. A. A. Powers, this hospitable lady and Mr. and Mrs. E. D. Bartholomew doing the honors of the occasion. The messes were all prettily attired and the guests looked their best, while they engaged in games and moved in stately quadrilles and the many walks to the music furnished by Prof. Rindt, with piano accompaniment by Mrs. Bartholomew and her husband. During the evening a splendid supper, which was prepared solely by the members of the club and served by them, was discussed, and it received many flattering compliments from the young gentlemen guests. The most souvenirs of the first meeting of the club were arranged by Mrs. Powers and her daughter. They were prettily designed miniature perfume bottles, having the appearance of sacks of flour, each marked XXX, tied with ribbons of different colors, and decorated with small sprays.

Five or six couples gave Mr. and Mrs. E. P. Rosh a surprise visit on at their cozy home on West North street last evening. The hours were pleasantly spent in a general indulgence in parlor games.

Dawson; secretary, W. H. Auld; superintendent, H. E. Foster. The company has a good thing, and will place the different sizes of building blocks on sale as soon as arrangements can be perfected.

For To-Night.

The new success, "Irish Aristocracy," will be given to-night at the opera house by the Barry and Fay comedy combination, which is new in the city. Hugh Fay and Billy Barry as Michael Muldoon and Michael Maloney, respectively, are immensely funny. They are opposite in make-up, dramatic in style, and in use of the dialect, but they go well in harness together, and make an unusually strong team. Fay is tall, slim, rather severe in his comedy and is artistic in all he does. Barry is round, plump, and overflowing with good humor, and although he approaches the burlesque in reaching his effects, he shows a good deal of the artist in his work and his business is exceedingly funny. The troupe will keep the house in a roar this evening. Popular prices—35, 50 and 75 cents.

There was a "close call" or whatever else you may call it, in one of the Deatur banks yesterday, when two local celebrities who have been clashing at each other recently, met there to transact some business. Both stood at the same desk and did some writing, but neither spoke or even looked at the other. Both went out without making any "reference to allusions."

A CHRISTIAN county man was in the city yesterday looking for a short-hand reporter. A Republican commissioner, supposing that Christian had another big case on hand, interviewed the visitor and found that at present all is quiet in his county—no recent sensations. He came here to see Mr. Montgomery who made a transcript of the evidence in the Bond trial at Hillsboro.

To-day an electric light wire was strung up, reaching from the top of Lian & Serrages' store to the Hubbard & Swearingen corner. A lamp will be swung in the store to-night, and the new light will shed its rays about that corner, down past the Republican office.

We are sorry to lose Walter Hutchin from Deatur society. He is a promising young man and will do well and make friends everywhere he goes. He has invested his money in real estate along store in Gibson City, Ill. Good luck to you, Walter.

Dr. W. F. Omluth, of Clinton, member of the Republican state central committee, has been brought as a candidate for the legislature in the district embracing the counties of DeWitt, Platt and Clay. He is a little early in the contest to be starting a boom.

Thomas Russell, the local detective who has figured somewhat in the Mr. Puleksi and Zura Burns mysteries, is of the opinion that Long and Hall had nothing to do with the triple murder. "Sold Again."

The members of a Deatur troupe and their friends have been extremely anxious all week to see what the Mecon Independent would have to say about the show given there on Feb. 15th. Here are the remarks of the Independent:

Sold again! Last Friday a gang of Deatur dunces, calling themselves "The Ohio State Singers," came down to give a concert at the Deatur opera house, and many there who were wont to see it. Their combined musical talent was about equal to that of one unsympathetic male, and the fellow who occupied the organ stand was equally lacking in musical worth. They claimed to have netted $30. We believe, however, that all who attended are yet living though it might have required skillful treatment.

They Want $100,000 More.

Black Rider returned home on Monday night from Jackson where he closed a meeting on that evening of two weeks and one day, with 80 additional, mostly by larpies. He leaves on to-morrow for Jacksonville to begin a protracted meeting. The rider informs us that the citizens of Jackson raised $100,000 in about 100 days, while he was there, to add to the endowment fund of the college situated there. They had previously raised $20,000. They now want to raise $100,000 in the state for the same fund.—Florida Review.
